Give your Child A Bright Future

Professional Tutoring

Kip McGrath Education centres have been helping children with Reading, Spelling, English and Maths for more than 25 years. There are now more than 600 centres worldwide.

The centres provide support (by caring, experienced and fully qualified teachers) to children who are finding schoolwork difficult and to those who are preparing for entrance examinations, SATS and GCSEs. Sometimes the difficulty is because of lack of understanding, with a child falling behind his or her peers- but sometimes a gifted child may be insufficiently stretched by work which is beneath their capabilities. Kip McGrath give hope to children who just don't understand, who are bored and frustrated or who no longer try. They also provide invaluable support to children who experience problems for other reasons, for those who have moved schools, who have been ill or have otherwise missed vital schooling. Kip McGrath give confidence to children who need to make up lost time and catch up with their peers. The programs are designed to give students the motivation to succeed. Every child and every problem is different, so every learning plan is different. There are no 'standard' timeframes and progress is at the students' own pace, so they are never overwhelmed and failure is minimised.

Kip McGrath gives them guaranteed success. Children try harder when they attend Kip McGrath because achievement is there for them all, and this achievement is not only rewarding, it is fun. From the moment children walk in to the centre there are clear messages given to them; this is a place where they can learn and this is a place where it is fun to learn.

I must admit, when faced with my advertisers offerings this month, I was feeling force fed on holly berries and winter snow. At the risk of being lambasted for even mentioning the word Christmas before the autumn leaves begin to turn to rust and golden hue, it must be said, September IS a good time to get ahead and book holiday parties and office dos. It is just a phone call or two away and perhaps a half hour's work. When it is sorted, you can drop the thought from your mind and get on with enjoying the last vestiges of the summer sun.

Of course, school is back in session and after you negotiate all of what that entails in the way of preparation (uniforms, school shoes, PE pumps, book bags, pens, pencil cases, rulers, calculators, bus passes, etc. etc...) you might get a minute's peace and start to think about what you want to do for yourself this autumn. We aren't short on suggestions; you will find pottery, arts and craft classes at Cobbles and Clay in Haworth, photography tuition in Stanbury, intriguing demonstrations entitled 'Chocolate Heaven' and 'Cheese Heaven' from the Pampered Chef at The Cheese Place; or how about piano lessons with Mrs. Pettitt in Oldfield?

The 'Where in the Worth Valley' competition is proving to be very popular with increasing entries each month. Highfield Motors in Oakworth is offering a free MOT to the winner this month: that equates to a value of £49.50! A big 'thanks' to Alfie at Highfield for donating this fab prize.

WINED & DINED

BY CLAIRE SMITH

Claire Smith from No. 10 The Coffee House in Haworth delights us with her unique culinary inspirations.

"Season of mist and mellow fruitfulness,
close bosom friend of the maturing sun;
conspiring with him to load and bless with fruit the vines that round the thatch-eves run."

Keats

Autumn, the space between summer and winter, warmth and chill, when the earth breathes with contented fulfilment and the last oozing drops of its ripening. A fruit-laden pause before slumber.

This is a time to celebrate the harvest of a fertile earth, still swelling in the September sun; the principal time in the alchemic culinary calendar for gathering and preserving the essence of summertime. The art of jam making, which began in the Middle East and was brought to Europe by the crusaders, is enjoying something of a revival in a society rebelling against mass produced, chemically enhanced food.
Shelves filled with jars containing jewel coloured jams, jellies and preserves are evocative of blue skies and hazy summer days, and are capable of bringing immense satisfaction to their creators when spread on thickly cut buttered toast and eaten in front of a cosy fire in the winter months-definitely a fair exchange for the trouble it takes to prepare them.

I love cherries preserved in Armagnac (you can use any brandy as long as the quality is good); the longer you keep them the nicer they and the liqueur in which they reside become, and certain members of my family cannot face breakfast without the exquisite flavours delivered by the clementine and cranberry marmalade brought to us by our friend Annette when she visits. These bottled treasures, the culmination of natural and human artistry also make the most wonderful and welcome gifts.

Autumn is the season for preserving peaches, blackberries, black and gold plums, bilberries, raspberries and tomatoes. Using fruit which is plump and ready for eating but not over-ripe will produce the best results; peaches,

raspberries and strawberries should be slightly under-ripe. The quality of the sugar used also forms an essential element in jam-making, preserving sugar being the best choice. Too little sugar will cause the jam to ferment; too much will make it over concentrated and cause it to crystallise.
You can further enhance the flavour of your jam by adding a little vanilla or cinnamon, alcohol such as rum or kirsch or by combining fruits- blackberry and apple for example. When it comes to using tomatoes, tomato preserve made using tomatoes, sugar, water and vanilla results in a preserve of the most beautiful and delicate flavour, and tomato honey, which originates from America, is excellent with hot and cold meats.

So gather up all that nature has to offer
and enjoy the flavours of summer all year round.

BACK TO SCHOOL!

"I am always ready to learn although I do not always like being taught."

Winston Churchill

For most of us September is nothing more than the tail end of a summer we're still waiting to begin, but for our younger brethren it's the harbinger of doom. Alice Cooper may have sung of the joy of school being out for summer, but nobody has sung anything to celebrate the end of those six magical weeks. The school holidays are also a pleasant period for the rest of us. There's barely more than a pony and trap on the roads and we can actually drive to work instead of crawling behind ten miles of mums on the dreaded school run.

Despite the trauma of compulsory education I suspect school isn't as scary as it was when I was in short pants. People may bleat on about the good old days when we used to thrash children with sticks, but I reckon I'd learn more algebra now than when I had one eye on my book and the other on the flying shoe of our clearly demented Maths teacher.

I'm almost certain my school was a retirement home for sadists in ill-fitting suits. The older ones had just about given up on teaching and were now perfecting the art of intimidating children. By far the most terrifying was the music teacher. He looked like a cross between Magnus Pyke and Adolf Hitler and his idea of teaching music was drumming the skulls of his frightened charges with dusty old hymn books. Ofsted? Off his head more like.

The Geography teacher was good... with a ruler – especially a double hander between two heads- whilst the French teacher was deadly with a stick of chalk. Other weapons of torture included those old fashioned desks with thick wooden lids which were good for crashing down on to back of unsuspecting heads or fingers.

Despite this punishing regime some subjects just didn't seem to work for me and if there had been a qualification in feigning interest I would have been top of the class. In three years of Biology all I learned was how to cut a rat in half. Chemistry was a bewildering half-hour of unfathomable code and exploding test tubes.

I don't know what school budgets are like now, but I'd bet my left ventricle they'd shame my old school. On the cusp of a computer age we were bequeathed text books that had been passed down from our great grandfathers. Calculators were forbidden. Even biro's were seen as the work of the devil. We had to use fountain pens or die. I remember being berated by my form teacher for daring to brandish a Bic.

"What are you supposed to use for writing boy?"

"Paper sir?", I replied in all innocence.

"Ink boy... Ink!", he screamed waving his fountain pen at me and slapping me about the head as my classmates giggled with delight.

I'm glad my children won't suffer that breed of teacher and many seem to think that's a bad thing, but there's a big difference between fear and respect. And with all due respect I wish I'd told him exactly where to put his fountain pen.

Topmarks Education was conceived by Sue Spolton, a primary school teacher and Chris Spolton a website designer. They decided to develop a free web site that would help others to use the internet effectively for learning. Topmarks is aimed specifically at pupils, teachers and parents. Although they bias their resources to UK curriculum requirements, the content is appreciated globally according to the feedback received. All sites featuring on Topmarks are carefully reviewed by teachers. They are also regularly re-checked because of the changing nature of the Web.

Finishing Touch
TCS launches a range of accessories

A warm hello to you all!
My aim with TCS is to bring to Haworth affordable, quality designed clothing. The brands I have chosen represent some of the best styles & creativity you can find. Timeless easy to wear & coordinated is how I would describe us! 'Now' colours are rich chocolates, plums and blues. The look this Autumn is layers and chunky knitwear! Prices start from £18. If you haven't been in before, take a few moments to come & see us. TCS has been described to me as an unexpected gem!

GARDENER'S TIPS

BY MIKE CUNNINGHAM

SEPTEMBER

This is the month when the garden seems to glow with colour; the month where fruit begins to ripen, Dahlias, and Chrysanthemums come into full bloom; where the shortening days and the first early morning frosts give us a foretaste of autumn.

Roses:

Continue spraying to protect against both black spot and mildew. To harden new shoots apply a feed of sulphate of potash. Remove all small buds that are unlikely to open before the early frosts begin. Shorten long shoots to protect against autumn gales. Continue deadheading. Tie in new shoots on climbers. Now is a good time to prepare a new rose bed by digging well and adding plenty of well-rotted manure.

Lawns:

Continue to mow, but the blades should be raised to give a lighter cut. Scarify or rake the lawn vigorously in two directions to remove debris and open up the turf surface ready for application of an autumn fertiliser. New turf can be laid this month.

Flowering Plants:

Carry on deadheading fading flowers and cutting back unsightly perennials to few inches above ground level, but remember to save and dry seed heads for next year. Hoe previously prepared beds and borders. At end of month start to clear summer bedding plants.

Bulbs:

Plant spring flowering bulbs, but not tulips. I always use new bulb-fibre for bulbs planted in bowls etc. Sow or plant out hardy annuals such as candytuft, larkspur, love-in-the-mist and poppies etc. Plant indoor flowering bulbs for Christmas such as hyacinths.

Vegetables:

Gather unharvested produce before it is damaged by frost or starts rotting in the ground. Remove potato plants infected by blight and burn them. Plant out spring cabbage.

House Plants:

Reduce watering and feeding rates gradually, until the winter minimum is reached.

Paths, Fences and Walls:

Repair or replace damaged fences and walls. Now is the time to consider constructing raised beds, which need strong firm walls.

Ponds:

Clear all debris and decaying vegetation from pools. Take measures to prevent leaves falling into the water.

Wildlife:

Clean and repair bird tables. If you want birds to visit you in the winter months you must ensure a permanent supply of food now.

Our Laddie

by Kathleen M Scatchard of Oakworth

The collie earns his daily keep,
Working the fields and moorland steep,
Trained, yet born with natural skill,
To serve in valley farm and hill.

In rounding up the sheep he's wise,
With gentle face and honest eyes,
That try so hard to understand,
Needs kindness, food, a gentle hand.

A friendship worth its weight in gold,
The leader of the sheep and fold,
His master's voice makes him feel glad,
Affectionate and loyal lad.

MY SPACE OR YOURS?

BY LAUREN (AGE 14)

Following on from last month's article about instant messaging, I'd like to write about Myspace, another hugely popular way that people communicate in our internet age.

Unlike Instant Messenger, which is mainly used by younger people, Myspace is beginning to be favoured by more and more adults.

First of all, "What IS Myspace?"

It is simply a gigantic website/social network published on the internet and populated by 'users' all over the world.

But more interesting is what you can do with Myspace.

Once registered as a member on Myspace you are given webspace to create a webpage called a 'profile'. You then fill the profile with information, pictures, videos and music. When you log on you see your control page, from which you can edit your 'profile', upload pictures and videos, send messages, post a blog (if you don't know what this is don't panic, see Definitions, right) and go to your friends' profiles.

In order for two people to be friends on Myspace, one has to add the other (via a button on their profile) and be accepted by the receiver of the 'friend request'. Once two people are friends they can send comments and messages to each other. Comments are available for everyone to see but messages are private. Once you have four or more friends you can create your 'Top Friends', which enables you to put your closest friends in an order, which you can either hide or display on your profile. Honestly, the amount of fall-outs over 'Top Friends' is ridiculous, which is why many people choose to hide theirs using HTML codes. HTML can be used to edit your profile in many ways, such as inserting a background for your profile, or making a slideshow of pictures. There are many different HTML help websites available; www.allhtmlcodes.com is a very useful one.

Bulletins are messages, which are sent to all of your friends at once and appear on a bulletin board on the control page of your Myspace.

If a user has uploaded pictures of himself/herself then, if you are their friend, you can leave them picture comments, telling them that you like their new hair or whatever else you may feel compelled to say.

Many people are concerned about the safety of Myspace, as it can allow someone to pretend to be someone they're not; however Myspace has introduced more safety precautions in order to protect Myspace users. For example if a person is under 16, then someone wishing to add them will be required to provide a last name or an email address to show that they really do know the person they are adding, and also the profiles of under 16 year olds are hidden from people who are not already their friend.

With the rise in popularity of this new form of social networking, there has been a huge increase in people seeking 'internet fame'; they add people simply as a means to notoriety by having lots and lots of friends in their network, until it gets to the point where they can be recognized on the street, eg. 'Wow is that BOB off Myspace?!' Yes, it really does happen, but often people adopt Myspace names, almost like stage names; for example if my name is 'Tiffany' I could call myself 'TiffanyTYRANOSAURUS', which would certainly be comical if I was pointed out on the street.

Acronyms are frequently used on both Myspace and instant messenger programs. Here are just a few you might find useful.

Acronym	Meaning
LOL	Laugh out Loud
ROFL	Rolling on the Floor Laughing
BRB	Be Right Back
GTG	Got to Go
OMG	Oh My God/Oh My Gosh
WUBU2	What You Been Up To
TBH	To Be Honest
ILY	I Love You
JK	Just Kidding
W/E	Whatever/Whenever

Definitions:

Blog [A shortening of weblog] A web site in which an individual or group of users produces an ongoing narrative.

HTML An acronym for Hypertext Markup Language, a standardized system for tagging text files to achieve font, colour, graphic and hyperlink effects on World Wide Web pages.

Finally, the best way to learn about Myspace is to actually try it out for yourself. Many people do not see the attraction of it until they have their own Profile. It is very easy to join and the Worth Valley Mag now even has a Myspace of its own. Visit it at www.myspace.com/worthvalleymag

Now Open All Day

Our Live music events are now better than ever. Weekly Jam Sessions held every Thursday are attracting good crowds and excellent musicians.

Joan and John are still entertaining a growing crowd on the first Tuesday of the month with their lively and often unique style of music! Folk nights are also growing in popularity. Held on the first Monday of every month this session attracts musicians and enthusiasts who enjoy traditional folk music.

And we still serve great beer!
